There are many websites where teachers can create free webpages for their class. One site that is both easy to use and has been around for several years is www.schoolnotes.com.

Schoolnotes.com lets teachers:

1. Create their own website for their class using a web browser: no special software like Frontpage or Dreamweaver is required.
2. Add text updates for students and parents, which can include class news, homework assignments, field trip information, etc.
3. Add up to 20 links to other websites. (These can include photo galleries created on ImageStation.)
4. Provide a direct email link for students and teachers, which protects the teacher's privacy.
5. Create flashcards for students to use from the website.

CREATE A SCHOOLNOTES ACCOUNT

2. Beside TEACHERS in the center box, click FIRST TIME REGISTRATION.
3. Enter your school's zip code, an account name, password and password reminder (The account name will be part of the internet address to your site, so choose a short word without any special characters or spaces.)
